5) ASSOCIATESHIP OF KING'S COLLEGE LONDON (AKC)

As Dean, I was ultimately responsible for the planning, delivery and examination of the Associateship of King's College London (AKC), a general course in biblical studies, theology, philosophy, ethics, history, religious experience, and major world faiths open to students of all departments and subjects, as well as staff and alumni.

The AKC had fallen into disrepute and hard times with only 200 students when I arrived in 1994, and so I was involved in a full Course and Curriculum Review 1995-1998, which led to a major revamp across all campuses, and an expansion of steadily growing numbers.

I also engaged a second full Course and Curriculum Review 2009-2013, which led to the appointment of the AKC Programme Director (responsible to me as Dean) and additional staff and a complete revamp of the budget, leading to numbers rising to well over 1,000.

A third Programme Review was undertaken 2016-2017, including Distance Learning options, and opportunities for post-graduate students, and a major overhaul of the examination and assessment processes.

As well as overseeing all the planning and delivery, and chairing the AKC Programme Board, I planned various term sets of lectures myself, and was involved in teaching them. Since my departure, there has been further curriculum development and around 2,500 students and many staff take this course across King's campuses each year.
